Implementing effective interventions and programs to support a client or population’s occupational performance requires that occupational therapists (OTs) in all service delivery areas demonstrate traits such as professionalism, therapeutic use of self, creative problem solving, safety awareness, and good clinical reasoning skills. In the areas of mental health (behavioral health) and other activity programs (such as adult day care or assisted living), an OT must also demonstrate good behavioral observation skills, effective group leadership and mentoring skills, and the ability to select and implement appropriate activities and occupations to meet the clients’ therapeutic goals. Review the information in Chapter 1 regarding therapeutic communication techniques. The worksheets and learning activities in this Chapter 8 will help you to identify various mental health settings, understand models of practice, and demonstrate knowledge of mental health interventions, including group leadership skills. Answers to worksheet exercises are provided at the end of the chapter.

Contents

Worksheet 8-1: Assessments for Mental Health Practice ................................................................. 281
Learning Activity 8-1: Models of Practice for Mental Health ......................................................... 283
Worksheet 8-2: Mental Health Settings ......................................................................................... 284
The Occupational Therapy Group Process ................................................................................. 286
Learning Activity 8-2: Eating Disorders ....................................................................................... 287
Worksheet 8-3: Social Skills Group—Picnic ................................................................................. 289
Learning Activity 8-3: Four Current Events Groups ................................................................. 291
Worksheet 8-4: Social Skills Group—Collage Craft ................................................................. 293
Learning Activity 8-4: Interventions in Mental Health—Frames of Reference ......................... 294
Learning Activity 8-5: More Interventions in Mental Health ......................................................... 295
Five-Stage Group Format Designed by Ross ............................................................................. 296
Learning Activity 8-6: Assisted Living Facility ............................................................................ 296
Worksheet 8-5: Mental Health Situations .................................................................................... 297
Worksheet 8-6: Therapeutic Responses ....................................................................................... 299
Worksheet 8-7: Mental Health Intervention Techniques ............................................................ 300

Morreale, M. J., & Amini, D.
The Occupational Therapist's Workbook for Ensuring Clinical Competence (pp. 279-312).
© 2016 SLACK Incorporated.